

Despite the age difference between the two main characters, this French film is a heartfelt love story that explores how people find happiness despite their circumstances. This documentary centers around 65-year-old Jeanette and 16 year old Louise, both of whom are living in extreme poverty and must fight for their daily bread by selling food and assisting with other odd jobs. As the two women make their way through life barely scraping by, they come to rely on each other more and more until they finally decide to embark on a cross-country journey to make it big as actresses. Their trials and tribulations as they struggle through an industry that's harder than it looks will leave viewers nostalgic for simpler times. This film is the perfect symbol of the beauty of life after 50, and will make you believe that it's never too late to find love. This classic French film tells the story of 45 year old Andre who after years of getting passed over by women in his life decides he wants nothing more than to live with an older woman. After realizing that this may be harder than he thought, he meets up with Eugenie just as she is about to turn 50. The two then embark on a summer romance that will leave you feeling young at heart. This story revolves around a 36-year-old man named Jean who is newly widowed. He quickly meets and falls in love with Charlotte, a widow almost 11 years his senior. The two begin to date in secret only to have their plan ruined when Charlotte's daughter meets Jean at the supermarket. The film then follows Jean and Charlotte as they find their way back into each other's lives after many trials and tribulations. This romantic comedy about an old blind man played by the charming French actor Alain Delon, shows how he is able to stay young in his old age by finding companionship in an attractive younger woman connected with his own granddaughter. This movie reminds us of the importance of friendship during aging. It shows how a few moments of happiness can make all the difference in life. It also portrays the disease of Alzheimer's, which is affecting many older people. The film is based on a book by Olivier Bernier. This French film stars Alain Delon as Henri, an elderly widower who wants to meet women between 45 and 50 but cannot because, although he lives in Paris, France, his friends are all married so they never take him out. Also starring Catherine Frot as Jules and Nathalie Baye as Claire. This romantic comedy follows Louis, a shy 50-year-old man who lives with his mother. One day, he meets 26-year-old Michelle at his mother's funeral and is immediately attracted to her. After some time, they begin dating, but he is unable to introduce Michelle to his friends or his family until one night when she comes over for dinner. When the two are left alone at dinner after Louis' family leaves, Michelle locks him out of the house believing that he had died. She then goes out dancing. Later on that evening she returns home to discover that Louis was not actually dead and is locked out of the house.
